UN Gives Okay to Test Ban During Talks

By TOM HOGE
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations today approved Soviet opposition to a U.S.-backed proposal calling for suspension of nuclear tests while the Geneva Big Three talks are in progress.

The 81-nation Political Committee voted for the plan 40-9 with 23 abstentions after a bitter procedural wrangle that lasted past midnight.

The ballot was hailed as a victory for the West. Diplomats held little hope, however, it would do much to win agreement at Geneva where the United States, Britain and Russia are negotiating over an international system to police nuclear tests.

The Soviet Union voiced dogged opposition to the resolution sponsored by the United States and 16 other nations. But it was believed the Russians would quickly suspend their tests during the Geneva parley—rather than risk charges of bad faith.

Today's vote came after collapse of Indian-Yugoslav efforts to get East-West agreement on a comprehensive proposal which called for halting tests but set no date for resumption.

The West insisted on voting priority for its plan after Russia and authors of other rival proposals refused its call to withdraw in favor of another last-minute compromise. This mildly worded proposal by Austria, Japan and Sweden merely expressed hope for success of the Geneva conference. It later passed, 52-9, with 19 abstentions.

The Indian-Yugoslav plan fell through after Russia tried to tack on a proviso reiterating the old Soviet call for immediate, unconditional cessation of tests for all time.

The West has opposed this demand all along, insisting on an inspection system to detect violations before agreeing to any permanent ban.

Plane Crew Didn't Keep Proper Watch

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force says the cause of a near-miss Monday night between a military tanker and an airliner was failure of the civilian plane's crew to keep proper watch.

The incident took place over Wilmington, N.C., as the Panagra liner with a National Airlines crew of five flew south. Upon landing at Miami, Fla., the copilot and the engineer reported they had to take evasive action to avoid collision with the tanker and two jets.

Secretary of the Air Force James H. Douglas said in a statement Thursday that press reports, based on statements by members of the airliner crew, indicated the captain was in the passenger compartment at the time, the copilot was preparing to make notations on his clipboard and the engineer was dividing attention between his instruments and the air space ahead.

Douglas said the refueling operation was being carried out in completely clear weather, on a flight plan approved by the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Henley Sworn in as Dist. Judge

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—J. Smith Henley of Harrison today was sworn in as federal judge of the eastern district of Arkansas.

The oath was administered by U.S. District Judge John B. Miller of Fort Smith, Miller, New here for the brief ceremony and then returned to Harrison, where he is holding court.

Henley, 41, was given an interim appointment as federal judge by President Eisenhower. The appointment is subject to Senate confirmation.

Henley, a Justice Department attorney and brother of Republican State Chairman Ben Henley of Harrison, was nominated for the judgeship by the President last February. But Congress adjourned before the Senate acted on the matter.

He succeeds Judge Thomas C. Tumble of Lenoire, who retired more than a year ago.

Henley is named as a successor to Federal Judge Harry J. Lendley of Hope, who retired this summer.

Henley, who practiced law in Texarkana, was one of a group of judges holding court in either the western or eastern district as needed.

Marines in Haiti to Give Assistance

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — A group of 10 U. S. Marine Corps specialists arrived here from Charleston, S. C., Thursday to assist in reorganization of Haiti's armed forces.

They are implementing an agreement between the United States and Haiti calling for a U. S. technical mission to help in the reorganization.

One objective of the reorganization is separation of the police forces from the army and emphasis on a small, highly trained army made up of specialists.

People Road Approval of New Pope

Editor's Note — In the first of three vivid word pictures of Pope John XXIII, the AP's veteran chief Vatican correspondent, Frank Brutto, tells some of the similarities and differences between the new pontiff and his predecessor Pope Pius XII, and the steps by which John XXIII reached the pontifical throne.

By FRANK BRUTTO
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Thousands in the Vatican square cheered approval when Pope John XXIII stepped to the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica to give his first blessing to the city of Rome and the world.

In the narrow streets of Sotto il Monte — which means Under the Mountain — children danced and shouted:

"Long life to Roncalli. Long live the Pope."

For it was in this little Italian Alpine town of 1,800 people that the 262nd pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church was born Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli nearly 77 years ago. He was the child of a poor farmer — about as different as could be from the noble Roman family that gave birth to his predecessor, Eugenio Pacelli, the late Pope Pius XII.

The Roncallis were patricians, the Roncalli humble countryfolk. Their now most famous son has sometimes been called a country man. It is a quality that has endeared him to many.

The quasi-joyfulness common to his native Bergamo province more than anything else immediately marks the difference between Pope John and his predecessor, the aristocratic Roman who for 19 years guided the church through an extremely difficult war and postwar period.

Few men looked less alike Pius, slender, frail, ascetic; John, a 210-pounder with a robustness befitting his years, a heritage of his peasant background.

But there are many similarities: dedication to the church from early life; intimate experience with Vatican administration years in the church's diplomatic service; association with foreign government heads a papal ambassador; a deep awareness of communism's threat to Catholicism; staunch defenders of morality; devotion to study, research and scholarship.

The new Pope was one of twelve children, his father a sharecropper. In 1933, when he became parish priest of Venice, he told his parishioners: "I was born of poor parents. Providence took me from my native hamlet and led me to travel the road of the world, from east to west, putting me in contact with the most serious social and political problems."

"Now . . . my long experience has led me to Venice. . . . Don't look at your parish as a politician and diplomat, but look at him as the servant of God."

Playboy Can Pass Through Mails

WASHINGTON (AP) — Subscribers to Playboy magazine apparently will get their November issue by mail after all.

The Post Office Department announced Wednesday it had halted mailing privileges for the magazine pending a legal check of its contents.

But the magazine's publishers obtained a temporary injunction against the postal ban, effective for five days. The U.S. Court of Appeals refused to set aside the District Court order.

The publishers said the magazine has not changed since the Post Office Department granted it a permanent second-class mailing permit last June, after examining its contents.

Congressional Control Fight in Final Weeks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The battle for control of Congress went into its final weekend today with Republican campaign forces armed with fresh economic ammunition in the form of another big drop in unemployment.

President Eisenhower sprang the news of a 300,000 decline in joblessness during October in a coast-to-coast television address from Baltimore Friday night.

As Eisenhower assailed the Democrats on issues ranging from civil rights to missiles, he himself came under renewed fire from Democratic campaigners.

Winding up his roll in the campaign, Eisenhower told his cheering GOP audience that in the last three months unemployment has dropped by 1½ million persons.

He added:

"That's Republican progress—not just talk, not leaf-raking schemes, not federal handouts. Just sensible leadership."

At Casper, Wyo., Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas challenged Eisenhower to list any "radical Democratic" legislation he would ask a Republican Congress to repeal.

Addressing a Democratic rally, Johnson scoffed at the "left wing" said was bludgeoned by GOP National Chairman Mendel A. Auer.

Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.) chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Committee, said Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon had failed to win over independent and Democratic votes.

"Ike has won no votes," Smathers said in a statement issued in Washington. "The people realize that he is sadly mislead—or sadly misinformed—when he mouths the 'barefaced' Democratic party."

Smathers went on to predict a Democratic gain of at least 12 Senate seats in Tuesday's elections.

Abolishing Schools Up Before ALC

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A brief discussion of the effects of abolishing public schools cropped up at budget hearing of the Arkansas Legislative Council yesterday.

Speaker of the House Glen F. Walther and Rep. Joel Y. Ledbetter, both of Pelaski County asked questions concerning school abolitionism of Hoyte R. Pyle, executive director of the State Teacher Retirement System.

Neither of the lawmakers would confirm that such a move actually was underway. But Walther said he had heard some discussion of that possibility to avoid racial integration.

The questions asked Pyle dealt with teacher pensions and other side effects of school abolitionism.

There Is Nothing Like Being Prepared in Peace and War

By MARY ANITA LASETER
BE PREPARED, the slogan of the Boy Scouts of America, was the keynote of the Handbook for Emergencies distributed by local Boy Scouts, the middle of October.

It has one step in the Program sponsored by the Office of Defense and Civilian Mobilization which is generally referred to as Civil Defense.

There's an old saying that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." In the case of an emergency caused by either a natural or a man-made disaster, an ounce of prevention could mean the difference between total destruction and the saving of thousands of lives.

Three phases of family preparedness which could mean the difference between life and death in a disaster are: Home shelter, disaster know-how and first aid. These were explained in the Handbook, as were Warning Signals, CONEGRAD Instructions, Fallout Protection and Commonly Plans for emergency action in case of an enemy attack.

Though some people may have the mistaken idea that Civil Defense preparation is glorified prudence by silly alarmists, it is, in truth, sensible recognition of realistic possibilities.

"But nobody's going to attack us," these people will say. "We live in a nice, safe town. It's not in a vital defense area. We aren't even on a river, so a flood won't occur here. What do we need Civil Defense for in Hope?"

Perhaps it isn't realized that even if a flood, an enemy bombing, a tornado or a forest fire never happens in Hope (and never did in Texarkana, Arkadelphia or Texarkana, Ark.), it would be a disaster if it occurred in a neighboring town like Texarkana, Arkadelphia or Texarkana, Ark.

Would you be able to help? Probably not, if you had had no training. Don't let the lack of training step on your toes. Become a member of

Collins to Shun Arkansas Governor

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Leroy Collins said yesterday that under no circumstances would he attend an Old Folks Picnic at Crestview Nov. 8 at which Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus will speak.

Collins said that even if he had not made previous commitments he would be reluctant to attend the Crestview meeting. When asked why, he said, "You can draw your own conclusions."

The Florida governor is regarded as a moderate on racial issues.

Ark-La Plans Industrial Pipeline

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co.'s board of directors today approved a 16 million dollar industrial pipeline development for Arkansas.

The action was taken at a meeting of the board in Shreveport, La., it was announced here.

Also approved was formation of a wholly owned subsidiary, Arkansas Industrial Pipeline Corp., to manage the project.

The new construction involves two major segments, connecting to Ark-La's present systems.

The first is a 16-inch 100-mile pipeline to connect the expanding Aetna gas field in Franklin County to the Ark-La system at Jones Mill at a cost of approximately six million dollars.

The second, an 18-inch line, will extend about 13 miles from Ark-La's pipe junction in Hot Spring county to Helena at an estimated cost of nine million dollars. This construction will enable the gas co.'s new generating plant near Helena which is scheduled for completion in 1961.

The new pipeline corporation was established "to take gas anywhere in Arkansas, Louisiana, Gas Co.'s territory or contiguous territories to serve industrial customers," said W. R. Stephens, Ark-La president and board chairman. Directors of the new corporation are:

Chairman, Henry Sargent of Hazen, a planter and banker; John M. Bransford of Lenoire, a planter and businessman; Ben Hogan of Little Rock, a contractor; Haskell Dickinson, Little Rock business executive; Ripley Thompson of McCrory, merchant and planter; Bert Dickey of Earle, banker and merchant; Reb M. Scoggins of Shreveport, a veteran Ark-La employee; John E. Taylor of Shreveport, Ark-La pipeline superintendent; Don W. Weir of Shreveport, Ark-La executive vice president, and Stephens.

Text of Washburn's TV Speech Against the 3rd-Cent Sales Tax

ALEX. H. WASHBURN
Editor & Publisher
Hope Star
Hope, Arkansas

Television speech 7 to 7:30 p. m. Thursday, October 30, 1958, over Stations — KTHV, Channel 11; KARK-TV, Channel 4; KATV, Channel 7, Little Rock; and KNAC, Channel 5, Fort Smith.

Repeated in person 7 to 7:30 p. m., Friday, October 31, 1958, over Station: KCMC-TV, Channel 8, Texarkana; with simultaneous pickup by KRBZ, Channel 10, El Dorado.

First, let me introduce myself. My name is Alex H. Washburn, editor and publisher of the Hope Star, evening daily at Hope, Arkansas.

The son of a Pennsylvania insurance manager and banker, I was graduated from the University of Missouri in 1923, moved to Arkansas the next day, and have been a citizen of Arkansas ever since—first at El Dorado, and, in 1929, at Hope.

Because I, a private citizen, have taken a public stand for good schools and the general welfare of Arkansas, you will hear the politicians and bureaucrats belittling me. I have frightened them by finally obtaining a popular vote on the 3% sales tax on groceries and medicine November 4. So they retaliate by trying to spread doubt in the minds of the people. Just a country editor, they'll tell you—who's financing him?

It happens that I am in a position to be independent of the politicians and bureaucrats.

I was one of the original advocates of the sales tax before its enactment in 1935. The permanent bond file of Hope Star for March 1, 1935, reports that, the night before, I was one of four Hope men who appeared before a committee of the Arkansas legislature in support of the Hall bill, the original sales tax measure. The other three were: O. A. Graves, Hope banker and school board attorney; and Charles Harrell and the late Theo P. Witt, Hope school board members.

The same newspaper file shows on February 21, 1935, this editorial signed by myself: "This friendly newspaper wishes to warn Governor Futrell not to let the 50th Assembly adjourn without producing a revenue bill that will adequately meet the school crisis. This newspaper is committed to a state sales tax for the schools."

And on March 7, 1935, the same file reports that the Hope PTA Council adopted a resolution praising me and my editorials for an outstanding contribution to good schools and good government.

Do the PTAs feel toward me today as they did 23 years ago?

Are you kidding?

The sad fact is, they don't love me any more.

I am out here attacking the 3% sales tax on groceries and medicine, urging you to vote against Act 19 on November 4.

The PTAs have joined hands with the University of Arkansas, the Extension Service, the political school managers in the Arkansas Education Association and the State Department of Education, and the machine politicians in a campaign to make you believe the 3% sales tax is necessary for the public schools. . . . and that the bulk of the sales tax does in fact go to the public schools.

Who is right in this controversy—an experienced newspaperman who was in there pitching 23 years ago and who has kept up with the legislative record all the years since; or the clamoring crowd now trying to stampe out with words and slogans in a campaign carefully organized by master politicians?

Let us examine the record of how the sales tax has been misused the last 23 years—and then you can decide for yourself who is right and who is wrong.

Under the original sales tax law the public schools got 65% of the revenue—today they get considerably less than half, despite two increases in the tax. . . . the exemption of groceries and medicine was removed in 1911. . . . and the rate was increased to 3% across the board in 1957.

Did you know that the sales tax has been used to reduce property taxes on the big fellows?

Did you know that because sales tax dollars came so easy the school leaders let property assessments fall so low that the tax base crippled your county and city governments and compelled them to go to Little Rock and get sales tax money for themselves?

Did you support the sales tax for the public schools or did you mean to turn it back to Hempstead county at the rate of $36,000 a year, and to the City of Hope at $24,000 a year? The total diversion of sales tax funds to county and city governments all over Arkansas runs into millions of dollars a year. Did you intend this?

And finally, did you know that the same 1957 legislature which was pressured into increasing the sales tax to 3% on groceries and medicine because it was alleged there wasn't enough revenue to support the public schools—this same legislature found money enough to make huge increases in the salaries of public officials?

I shall document these charges with figures as I get along with this speech.

You must understand the background against which the sales tax started in 1935.

at the end of the Great Depression. Property was broke. It could not carry the school burden alone. The sales tax was enacted as an emergency measure with the understanding that property assessments would be reformed and made to carry their fair share of the tax load as we worked our way out of the depression.

Twenty-three years later this turns out to be the biggest double-cross of the common people in all Arkansas' 122 years as a state.

Today Arkansas property values are the highest in history—but the assessing ratio is the lowest.

I am comparing the 1929 figures, before the sales tax, with the figures today—when we have a 3% sales tax on groceries and medicine.

Remember that 1929 had a 100-cent dollar. Our dollar today is worth about 33½ cents. You know what I mean. You bought an automobile back in 1929 for $700. Today it costs you $2,100 or more. And the same inflation applies more or less to groceries and other necessities—but you pay, nevertheless, 3% sales tax on those high prices.

Now let us see how property and wealth have fared in the tax business since 1929.

In 1929 my home county of Hempstead had a total assessment of $3,132,592. That would figure out in today's currency as $24,397,776, without allowing for any new construction or any rise in market value. Do you know what Hempstead county's total assessment is today with the highest market in history? It is $11,422,845—less than half the adjusted dollar assessment of 30 years ago.

The state-wide comparison is about the same. The assessed valuation of the whole state of Arkansas in 1929 was $624,324,850. That would figure out in today's currency as $1,872,074,550, without allowing for any new construction, new industry, or rise in market value. Arkansas' total today, with the highest market in history, is $1,016,266,580—only a little more than half the adjusted dollar assessment of 30 years ago.

Property assessments haven't followed the upward flight of the inflation dollar. They didn't have to—now we have a 3% sales tax on groceries and medicine, presumably to help the public schools—but also handing big property owners a 50% cut in assessments, for sure.

Let me tell you how bad the property assessment picture is, using a case I should know about, Star Publishing Co. and Hope Star, of which I am resident half-owner. I organized that company 30 years ago. Today it carries Dun & Bradstreet's top financial rating. What about its tax record? I will shock you as it shocked me—and I give you my word I have done my level best to improve its assessment record, without success. As you know, you can't make sharp increases individually without involving the tax assessor in a lot of arguments with other property owners. So the conscientious citizen who tries to make an honest report stands alone and rejected.

Back in 1929 Star Publishing Co. owned only machinery—no real estate. Our initial audit shows we paid local taxes that year totaling $256.63. Revalued in today's 33½ cent dollar that tax bill, if there were no additions to machinery and no purchase of real estate, would figure out at $769.89.

But over the last 30 years that newspaper plant has been replaced, with the exception of one linotype. In 1922 we bought a downtown building, and in 1955 we tore it down and put up a brand new air-conditioned building.

Against that adjusted tax bill of $769.89 back in 1929 what do you suppose Star Publishing Co. paid this year? Exactly $598!

That is to say, after 20 successful years, and now owning valuable downtown property, Star Publishing Co. finds itself paying a tax bill $171.89 less than it paid 30 years ago when it owned no real estate!

Furthermore, to illustrate how the assessing picture has failed, the high tax of 1929 was earned on 29.7 mills. Today's millage is 52—but this produced $171.89 less tax than 29.7 mills did 30 years ago.

That is why I say—and all the assessing figures, both local and state-wide, bear me out—that the sales tax has gone in part to reduce property taxes.

Now I am a daily newspaper publisher. Between 30 and 35% of my revenue comes from the people who subscribe to my newspaper. In return for that money I have an obligation to tell them the truth, and to the best of my ability, protect them from the lying propaganda and tax gouges which have been framed against them by conspiring bureaucrats.

And because I helped start the original

ALC Spokesman Says Eldridge on Way Out

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Is Highway Director Herbert Eldridge on his way out?

A member of the Arkansas Legislative Council says he is.

The council member, who asked not to be identified, made that statement after a stormy council hearing yesterday on the State Highway Department's proposed budget for the next two fiscal years.

The lawmakers angrily ordered highway officials to rewrite the budget so they could "bust it."

A council member then said Eldridge was at fault for the highway department's trouble with the Legislature and that the director "has to go."

He said that unless the highway commission promises to fire Eldridge, the Legislature will force him out by setting qualifications for the post that he could not meet.

The lawmakers angrily ordered highway officials to rewrite the budget so they could "bust it."

The highway budget the council ordered rewritten called for expenditures of $93,000,000 in 1960 and $85,020,000 for 1961. It budget was the only one considered at yesterday's session.

Council members voted to recess until Wednesday, when they will begin considering general revenue budgets. Hearings this week were on budgets financed by special, earmarked, revenues.

Suspension of Nuclear Tests to Be Tried

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since it opened, the atomic age 13 years ago, the United States began today a trial suspension of nuclear weapons test explosions.

The suspension may continue for a year, with possible indefinite renewal, or it may last only a few days or even hours. That depends on what the Soviet Union does.

The U.S. halt coincided with the opening today of a U.S.-British-Soviet conference in Geneva to seek agreement on a permanent test ban policy by an international inspection system.

The Soviet government rejected a U.S.-British proposal that all three of the world's nuclear powers agree on a one-year suspension beginning today.

The Soviets contended they have the right to go on testing until they have matched bomb for bomb the number of explosions fired by the United States and Britain during the summer and fall.

The United States replied that in spite of the Soviet rejection, this government is going ahead with its suspension because the decisive element in calling it off is not what Moscow says but what Moscow does.

If the Soviet government goes on with the test series which it began at the end of September, officials said, the United States will consider that its suspension is no longer in effect and will resume testing itself.

Secretary of State A. McCone of the Atomic Energy Commission had announced this policy earlier in the week. Authorities here understood that Britain was following the same kind of policy.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, accused the Soviet government of inconsistency in its present attitude toward suspending tests.

The Soviets charged the United States and Britain with trying to obtain a one-sided military advantage by offering a test suspension upon conclusion of their own experimental explosions.

White said in a statement, the Soviet government "describes as absurd the idea that the Western powers have any inventions in the field of nuclear research."

The statement also recalled that in September 1957, the Soviet Union proposed a ban on nuclear tests for two or three years from last June 1. But now the State Department said the Soviet government says it is interested only in halting tests "for all time."

Man Wounded in Hunting Accident

MONTICELLO, Ark. (AP) — Robert Austell, about 45, of Monticello, was wounded gravely in a hunting accident about 10 miles north of Monticello today.

Authorities said Austell shot a gun discharged when he apparently slipped while going down an embankment. The charge from the gun struck Austell in the chin and mouth.

Austell is head of the dye department of the Charm-Tred Mills, a Monticello rug manufacturing plant.

New name for the outpost was Fort Charles 111.

In the gold rush to California in 1849, there were 42,000 overland arrivals, plus 33,000 by ship and 9,000 via Mexico.

Saenger Tonite

Saenger Tues.

Hauls Dynamite From Trash Can

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — A janitor reached into a trash container at the 1,750-nupil E. C. Glass High School Tuesday and came up with a paper bag containing dynamite.

Inserted in the explosive was a cap and running from the cap was a coil of wire. A flashlight battery, not connected to the wire, also was in the bag.

The discovery came after pupils in the white school where a bombing threat was received last Thursday, had left for home. Authorities had ordered the school evacuated after last week's threat but no explosive was found.

The bomb threat was telephoned to the school office. The caller, believed to have been a young male, said, "We think you should know that a bomb has been placed in the E. C. Glass High School." The caller gave no motive.

Artificial Leg Case Is Solved

CLARKSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The case of the artificial leg is solved. Hoyt Vaughn, a Sheridan automobile dealer, told Sheriff Robert Hardwicke yesterday that he is the thief who discarded the artificial leg—a woman's—on a rural road near here.

Residents were puzzled when the leg was found Tuesday, lying at the roadside complete with a high-heeled shoe and nylon stocking.

Vaughn told the sheriff he found the leg in some used furniture he bought here and tossed it from his car.

Sheriff Hardwicke said a group of Clarksville High School students have found a good use for the leg. They plan to put it in a "house of horrors" at a school carnival tonight.

Teen-Agers Are Changing
Rock 'N' Roll Record

Dear Dorothy Dix:
I have a problem that is almost universal with today's teenagers, yet I don't think you have ever mentioned it. I love rock 'n' roll music but my parents object whenever I have it on the radio. I can listen to my own record player in my room but I don't have a radio. How can I make them change their minds? — Ima Hep Cat

Dear Girl: Would you like to be let in on a little secret? The news is that rock 'n' roll is losing popularity with teenagers. There's a slow but sure movement back to — guess what? The classics. Young people are discovering that there's real charm in string quartets, piano concertos and symphonies. Why not be the first in your crowd to pinpoint the new trend? Boy, will your folks be surprised when you come home with your first Handel recording. Most parents have been reconciled to some rock 'n' roll music but you kids have been overdoing it. Parents get tired of the same thing over and over. Get a little variety into your listening and I'm sure your folks will be reasonable.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
My husband has a sister who is 17 and boy crazy. She has absolutely no respect or consideration for her mother. In fact, I am shocked at the way she acts at home. If I had ever behaved like that I'd have felt the sting of my father's hand even at 18. Her friends are definitely not the "right kind." She's the baby of the family and to say that she's spoiled is a gross understatement. I've only been in the family four months but I sure would like to straighten this kid out — Phyllis C.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
Dear Phyllis: Your intentions are admirable but there's nothing you can do. One move from you and the family will rise up and cry "interfering in a law." The young lady has a mother, father and assorted brothers and sisters. If they can't set her straight, no one can. Tell your husband how you feel but don't let on to anyone else, at least until you are thoroughly accepted as a loving daughter-in-law.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
To give a synopsis of my problem: Six months ago I met a soldier, we fell in love and planned our marriage. Then he told me he had a child in Germany and that the mother is coming to New York. He said he was not good and we'd better break off. We did and now I learn that he's going with a girl from his neighborhood. I still care about him and wonder if I should call and ask about the German girl — Maureen.

Dear Maureen: The fraulein, I bet was a convenient figment of your soldier's imagination. This samurai has become quite a popular gag with service men who want to drop a trisome girl without losing face. He's very right about one thing: he's "no good," especially for you. Drop the telephoning idea and put him in the limbo of lost loves.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
I have been told that I'll never be popular in school because I am not good in my activities. This seems very unfair. I'm a very good student and I'm sure with encouragement from others I could be good at gymnastics and sports — Allen.

Dear Allen: Let's not kid ourselves: the most popular boy in any school will always be the football hero. Everyone else takes the backround. But since that's where the majority is, what's so bad about it? Stop resenting your lack of talent in the brawn department and figure what you can do with the brains contingent. The non-athletes run the newspaper, the yearbook, the dramatic club, the debating team, the orchestra and all other things. Get in there and pitch in. Even if it isn't baseball.

THE STORY: Katherine has started to hint at the dinner table to Aunt Millicent that her stepfather Paul murdered her mother. Paul is at the table, listening ominously.

Chapter XI

She turned back to Aunt Millicent and said, "How do you know that Mother just happened to drown? She was a good swimmer! It was desperately urgent that she should make her understanding that it was at least possible that her mother had been murdered."

think killed her." Katherine hesitated for a second, and then, without looking around over her shoulder, she said in a choked voice, "Paul." "But that's perfectly ridiculous. I won't let you go on saying things like that." "I don't care," said Katherine stubbornly. "I know." "Darling, listen to me. Paul loved your mother. She loved him. He was her husband. He'd be the last person on earth to want to hurt her."

Katherine didn't answer. She shook her head. "Why, it's simply fantastic! You're a very naughty little girl, and if I were Paul I'd certainly be waiting for an apology right now."

"He was at home!" "We all know that he went out in the car—he drove clear up the coast." "But he didn't! He was at home! He was swimming when Mother was drowned, and he doesn't want anybody to know!"

Aunt Millicent straightened herself up, and said in her strictest way, "Paul, is this true?" "Certainly not," he spoke indifferently. His expression was almost bored — almost, but not quite — it was trying to seem bored, but it was not quite succeeding.

"But he wrote it down in his engagement book," it says — 2 o'clock — swimming." "Where is this engagement book?" "In his dresser."

"Well, then, it will be perfectly easy to see if—" "But that page is torn out. He tore it out so no one could read it. He was afraid that if anyone saw it—"

Paul said in his indifferent voice, "I didn't touch that page. If anybody tore it out, it wasn't me. I think Katherine tore it out herself, just so she could make up this whole story."

"No, I didn't, I didn't! He— 'Tell the truth!' 'I am telling the truth! Honestly! He tore it out himself so that no one could see it.' 'And I suppose he burned it then so nobody ever will be able to see it. There are wicked things you're saying about Paul. I hope you know that.' 'But he did burn it!'" and Aunt Millicent might get married. It couldn't be.

She heard Aunt Millicent say, "Go on and eat your lunch now, darling."

Paul was still silent, brooding, faraway; his dark eyes were half closed in thought. The only sounds in the room were the noises they made as they chewed their sandwiches, the crunching of lettuce and toast, the intermittent rustle of napkins, the clatter of a knife against a plate.

Amy came in from the kitchen. She said, "Well, I've got peach ice cream and cake if anybody wants dessert."

Aunt Millicent said, "I don't think I'll have any."

Paul shook his head.

Katherine said, "I'll have some ice cream."

"Please!"

"Yes, please."

Amy began gathering up the dishes. Aunt Millicent said, "Well, there's no sign of the rain you keep predicting, Paul."

"No."

"Well," — she pushed back her chair — "I guess I'll get undressed and go down for a swim."

She stood up. "Are you coming down, darling?"

"I might, I don't know."

"I just wish that Bunks and Piggy were here for you to play with. They'd be so good for you."

She said to Paul, "Are you coming down?"

"After a while."

Paul got up and followed Aunt Millicent out of the dining room, leaving Katherine alone at the table to eat her dessert and wonder.

When she finished, Katherine slipped back her chair quietly, and crept across to the edge of the living room arch, careful to keep Paul from knowing that she had gotten up if he were still in the living room.

There was a tall wing chair standing on the opposite side of the fireplace with its back to the dining room — one of the few upholstered chairs in the room — and she ran quickly around behind it and sat down on her knees there, out of sight. She knew that she was not really hidden, that she could easily be seen from out on the terrace through the windows on each side of the fireplace. But she did not think he would come from either of those directions. He was, himself, in too great a hurry to get rid of the paper. He would take the first opportunity which seemed at all safe, and would certainly not arrive there by any sort of devious route.

The rough cords of the carpet cut into her skin, and her glasses had a tendency to slide down her nose so that she had to grab them to keep them from falling off. What would she do now if she lost her glasses?

And then she heard a sound. She held herself very stiff and still to listen. It was a sound she herself had made in the night, a dim sound, not at all close to her, the sound of a doorknob being slowly turned, and the click of the bolt slipping back from the clasp. He had been waiting after all, and now he was coming out of his room.

It seemed to her that the waiting was interminable; and now, changing moods, she thought abruptly that any shadow of the ridiculous — of a child's game of hide-and-seek — which might have hung about the affair had been brushed roughly away by the reality of the moment. She heard her watch ticking on her wrist, and she thought: Maybe he can hear it, too!

And at that very instant, as her thoughts had wandered briefly, she heard what she had been waiting for — the striking of a match by the fireplace. It took her completely by surprise. She had had no idea that he could have gotten there yet; he must not have been moving as cautiously as she had imagined. He must have believed himself quite safe, and have been in a hurry to finish his business before she could get in his way again.

She jumped up, landing on her feet, and ran around the chair. Paul held a lighted match in one hand; in the other was the paper, unfolded, waiting to be touched to the flame. But he had not touched it yet.

He looked around as he saw her, holding the burning match steadily so that it would not go out. As he saw her, he showed his teeth.

She made a quick lunge for the paper, but he gave his short laugh and held it up over his head, out of her reach. She jumped and caught his arm, trying to drag it down, stretching wildly to reach the paper, but it was still too high.

Deputies Seize River Towboat

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Deputies from the United States marshal's office here yesterday took charge of the towboat Carl D. and eight empty barges when the fleet docked at Helena.

The Atlantic Mutual Insurance Co. asked that the boats be seized in connection with a $1,000,000 damage suit it filed Wednesday in federal district court.

Atlantic Mutual is seeking judgment for 5,000,000 tons of lead it says sank in the Mississippi River in a towboat accident.

The seized boats are the property of the West Tennessee Limestone Co., Inc., of Nashville, Tenn.

In 1931, more than two-thirds of the population in Canada lived in rural areas; today two-thirds live in the urban areas.

GOV. FAUBUS Says . . . Full Crew Law Doesn't Hurt Arkansas* Vote AGAINST Initiated Act No. 1

*Arkansas Gazette, July 25, 1938

Governor Faubus signs a full crew petition for S. J. Smith at Fordyce, Ark.

The Arkansas Committee for Railroad Safety appreciates Governor Faubus' stand against the attempt of outsiders to "use" the state of Arkansas. The Eastern railroad interests are trying to bleed Arkansas of $3,000,000 a year more profits at the expense of safety and service. They will eliminate thousands of jobs and force more of our people to leave the state. They will cause death and injury to Arkansas citizens. These outside interests have callously engaged in a "brainwashing" campaign. They want to repeal our safety laws, cause unemployment, and force more people to leave Arkansas. . . . And none of this will reduce the cost of living or freight rates.

sales tax legislation I have a state-wide obligation to expose and defeat the 3rd-cent tax on groceries and medicine which you will vote on November 4.

My guess is, you aren't going to get much help from the newspapers. The only help I got from the press in circulating the petition which put the 3% sales tax on next month's ballot came from my late partner, Clyde E. Palmer, older, more experienced publisher, who felt like I did—that the sales tax has been carried to a brutal extreme.

Both the big Little Rock papers are editorially supporting the 3% sales tax. Yet they, like my own paper, have an obligation to take care of their subscribers' interests in return for the money that the subscribers have paid them.

Are they really supporting the 3% sales tax as a public service, or are they afraid that if it falls some substantial part of the tax burden will fall back on their own wealthy properties?

I have given you the 30-year tax record of my own newspaper, and previously published it in Hope Star as the record of a speech I delivered before Hope Rotary club on September 26.

I challenge the Little Rock papers to give the people of Little Rock their own tax records the last 30 years, adjusted to the present-day dollar and with property expansion over the period accounted for.

The sales tax has been used as a cover-up for property taxes.

With property taxes it is always Tomorrow—but with the sales tax it is always Today.

Every person, every business house that speaks up for the 3% sales tax is in this hour suspect.

He is suspected of acting through fear or self-interest.

All these people shouting for the 3% sales tax are serving themselves.

So I advise you to serve your own self—and vote against Act 19, the 3rd-cent sales tax—next November 4.

Thirty years ago timberland in Arkansas was assessed $2 to $3 an acre—call it $2.50 on the average. And you had no sales tax on your back.

Adjusted to today's dollar that $2.50 assessment would figure $7.50. But today's average timberland assessment is only $4—about half the amount of 30 years ago—while you have wrapped around your neck a 3% sales tax on groceries and medicine that costs the average family $90 a year in taxes that were not levied 30 years ago.

The sales tax has been used as a cover-up for property taxes.

With property taxes it is always Tomorrow—but with the sales tax it is always Today.

And for this cruel and intolerable situation I lay the blame squarely at the door of the political school crowd. They are in fact the public schools' worst enemy.

They have laid off the rich and soaked the poor.

And here is the great tragedy for Arkansas:

The major holdings are in big companies, with most of their stockholders living outside the state. The only way we have of making these absentee owners pay their just share of the cost of Arkansas government is to assess their corporate holdings fairly during the years they are in business here.

Otherwise, there comes a time when they liquidate, pay the federal government its 25% capital gains tax, pocket the balance personally—and Arkansas gets nothing.

And the home people of Arkansas have to pay a 3% sales tax to fill up the hole that foreigners have dug for us.

When will Arkansas start looking after her own people and demand that outsiders doing business among us carry their fair share of the load?

Other states look after the home folks—and they are gaining population, not losing it like Arkansas.

People flock to Florida and California. Both those states collect property taxes in a big way. And both states have the 3% sales tax. But groceries and medicine are exempt. The home people buy tax-free at the grocery store. The tourist eats at a restaurant and pays sales tax. And that's how it ought to be.

When will Arkansas start looking after her own people and demand that outsiders carry a fair share of the load?

Now when I talk tough about property taxes I know you think at once of your own property. With most of you, that means the house you live in. Probably your house and personal assessments have increased recently. Mine have, for sure.

But the assessment problem I speak of isn't primarily concerned with you. The man with one house isn't the fellow the government should be looking for. They've probably got you already for most of what they'll get. Besides, the 3rd-cent sales tax costs the average family $90 a year—and you have a chance to knock that out by voting against Act 19.

The trouble in Arkansas lies, as I have said, with the big holdings. This is the great tax leak. This is the reason you are called on year after year to put up more and more sales tax dollars—on the necessities of life. Now no one likes to pay taxes. But property owners expect to pay their share of the cost of civilized government. And they will do so if given half a chance.

Let me tell you how the impractical school crowd has blocked every honest attempt to put property on the assessment book fully and fairly.

Common sense tells you that when an owner is asked to list all his property for the public record, and at a higher valuation than formerly, he expects some kind of protection on the millage rate at which that property may eventually be taxed. Originally we had such protection in Arkansas—a school tax ceiling of 18 mills.

The political school crowd in 1948 talked the people into ratifying Amendment 40—which I fought all the way—abolishing the 18-mill ceiling. Now we have no ceiling. Now school district taxes run as high as 60 or 70 mills in some districts. In my own Hope district the rate has risen to 35 mills—and would have gone to 40 mills last year had not this editor and his newspaper aroused the public. I took the position then, as always, that you can't reform the assessment level as long as you kid yourself into believing phony millage rates will bring in more tax dollars. Actually, the tax dollars go down, as I showed you from the tax records of my own property.

The political school crowd goofed again—and this time it was a royal double-cross—only two years ago. The 1955 legislature had worked up a package deal with the schools' agreement. One part of the package was Act 153 to increase assessments gradually to 20% of property's true value, and providing penalties in reduced state aid for districts which failed to bring their assessing figures in line.

The other part of the package—to which the political school crowd had solemnly agreed was proposed Amendment 43, which would have restored the tax ceiling at 30 mills. The legislature approved Amendment 43 and referred it to the people in the general election of 1956.

Immediately, the school crowd repudiated their legislative agreement and put on a state-wide campaign to defeat the 30-mill tax ceiling—and did so. Specifically, the Hope School Board and the board of neighboring Prescott issued public statements attacking the 30-mill ceiling—and I replied by denouncing both boards in newspaper editorials.

And so today the political school folks are conducting another state-wide campaign—this time to support the 3% sales tax, because they studiously hindered and double-crossed every attempt to reform the assessing program and give property owners a chance to pay a fair share of the cost of government.

So the tax millage goes up, the assessment program slows down to a standstill—and the small man gets a 3% sales tax on his groceries and medicine.

Is this a mere accident—or is it deliberate? That's a good question.

I say it is deliberate.

The master-minds of this state-wide campaign for the 3rd-cent sales tax have organized just about everybody—including the tax-supported agents of the University of Arkansas, the tax-supported Welfare Department, and a host of politicians who have gotten big increases in their tax-paid salaries.

More than a year ago John Tyler Caldwell, president of the University of Arkansas, issued a memorandum to everyone on the University payroll requesting donations to cover the deficit of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Education (GACE)—the pressure group which put over the 3% sales tax in the 1957 legislature. I have a copy of that memorandum, dated May 15, 1957.

When the boss of an outfit calls for a political contribution is it a request or an order?

I'll let you answer that one.

Mr. Caldwell and his institution are supported by the taxpayers and wherever he goes he travels at public expense. Only a few days ago, October 16, he was in my town of Hope campaigning publicly for the 3% sales tax.

Less than a week later he was followed to Hope by one of his tax-supported associates, Kenneth S. Bates, assistant Director of the Agricultural Extension Service. Mr. Bates campaigned for the 3% sales tax at an area home demonstration membership meeting; and I was told that from my town he went to a similar meeting at Arkadelphia.

And while I am on the subject of the Extension Service let me tell you the setup in Hope, and then you may find it is the same in your own city and county. Thirty years ago when Hempstead county's farm population was twice what it is today it was ably served by two agents. Today, with half the farm population there are not two but six people in the Hope office.

What do they do?

You guessed it—they beat the bushes for votes for the 3% sales tax so nobody will get discharged.

Comfortable people with good cars and nice homes, these tax-supported individuals see nothing wrong in taking tax dollars off the grocery bill of less fortunate citizens who can just barely see where tomorrow's living is coming from.

But after all, these are only small people. The same 1957 legislature which said money was so short we had to have a 3% sales tax on groceries and medicine, and gave a modest though delayed raise to the school teachers and old folks—this same legislature dealt out handsome increases to persons high in Arkansas government. Here is the record:

SUPREME COURT JUDGES—Their salaries were increased from $9,000 to $15,000.

CIRCUIT AND CHANCERY JUDGES—Raised from $7,200 to $10,800.

STATE HOSPITAL SUPERINTENDENT—Raised from $12,000 to $15,000.

STATE HOSPITAL DIRECTOR—Raised from $8,500 to $11,400.

LEGISLATIVE AUDIT CHIEF—Raised from $8,500 to $10,000.

STATE REVENUE COMMISSIONER—Raised from $7,500 to $10,000.

WELFARE COMMISSIONER CARL ADAMS—Raised from $7,500 to $10,000.

I saved Mr. Adams for last—purposefully. His is the lowest, meanest story of all. On October 2 an old man brought a slip of paper to the office of Hope Star and told me it was mailed in the same envelope with his welfare check, which as you know is covered by both federal and state money. The slip said:

"The money which makes your grant possible comes mostly from the sales tax. This tax will be voted on November 4 in the general election. Your vote for Act 19 will prevent this cut in your grant. Get your friends and relatives to vote for Act 19."

That same night I sent photostats of the threat to Little Rock to ascertain what authority Welfare Commissioner Carl Adams had to include electioneering material in a mailing of federal-participating funds—but I got nowhere.

In the Little Rock Democrat October 6 Commissioner Adams confirmed the state-wide mailing and said federal authorities had approved of the notice before it was sent out.

On October 9 I reported this matter by telegram to Miss Kathryn Goodwin, Acting Director, Bureau of Public Assistance, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D. C.—and asked for a federal statement.

The following day Miss Goodwin wired me from Washington:

"We have requested a complete report on this situation. In the meantime we would prefer not to comment."

Not only did Commissioner Adams tell an untruth—he appears from that telegram to be under investigation.

The whole threat against the welfare folks is merely the bluff of a frightened politician. The man who sent out that slip has more to fear than the man who received it.

The old folks' checks were only raised from $35.63 to about $42 a month—but Commissioner Adams got an increase of $2,500 a year.

Commissioner Adams' talk about cutting the welfare checks in half is pure nonsense. One of the best informed authorities on state finance is John F. Wells, publisher of the Arkansas Recorder, government news digest, Little Rock. He wrote in the October 10 issue of the Recorder that Commissioner Adams' statement was fantastic because at the very best the old age assistance fund got only 1½ million dollars from the 3rd-cent sales tax, and, besides, the state Treasury had prior to the 1-cent rise in the sales tax a General Revenues surplus of 10 million dollars.

So the welfare folks can vote as they please on Act 19 next Tuesday—and let Commissioner Adams hang on to his $2,500-a-year salary increase as best he can.

Everyone else will be voting in their own interest, so you do the same—vote against this 3rd-cent tax on your groceries and medicine.

Now the 3rd-cent sales tax is going to be defeated when the people vote on it next Tuesday, and it must be obvious to you that it is going to take many years to work out a program of property assessment reform.

What, the school folks ask me, do you have to offer as an emergency program to take us through this critical period just ahead?

My answer to all the school teachers of Arkansas, and to the welfare folks as well, is simply this:

The school politicians have been quick to tell us the size of public school budgets and school teachers' salaries in other states—why haven't they been equally quick to tell us how those other states pay for those budgets and salaries?

The school politicians have known the answer all along. They knew it back in 1957 when, instead of telling you all the truth, they cowardly hid the answer—and demanded instead that the legislature pass the 3% sales tax against groceries and medicine. They took the easy road of crucifying the poor because they were afraid if they told you the truth about those other states' school finance programs they would run into controversy.

Well, they borrowed those other states' school budgets—now let them borrow their tax program—and lay off the poor.

Seventeen American states own and operate liquor dispensary systems. Several of these are Southern states, notably Alabama, North Carolina, Virginia.

Under the state owned package store system the state retains store-profit as well as liquor tax, using the revenue to help schools and old folks. The state monopoly covers distilled spirits only, excluding beer.

It is a virtual certainty that a state-owned liquor dispensary in Arkansas would yield more public revenue than the 3rd-cent sales tax does now—that is, to say, the annual state revenue should run 14 to 15 million dollars.

This is an education relief measure which the 1959 legislature could enact at once in January.

It is controversial, I know. But, unlike the political crowd, I have the good common sense to stand up here and tell you about it. And I point to its success in Alabama and North Carolina and Virginia over many years.

I am telling you about the liquor dispensary system now because come next Tuesday the people are going to throw out that 3rd-cent tax on groceries and medicine—and then you will have to make up your mind about emergency revenue.

Well, I am at the end of a long story—a story on which I have spent nearly $11,000 personally. In 1955 I circulated the petition for a vote against the exemption of livestock and poultry feed from the 2% sales tax, arguing that the school folks refused to fight it because they wanted an excuse to raise the sales tax to 3%. I bore all of the cost of that petition, $6,024.96.

Apparently it was worth while, even though the petition was destroyed in the courts. When I circulated in 1957 the petition to put the 3rd-cent sales tax on the ballot next Tuesday the most eager signers were these same poultry people. Back in 1955 I had told them the truth. The sales tax did go to 3%—and so in 1957 the poultry people found they were paying more sales tax on groceries than they saved in feed exemption. So I was a true prophet, and of that 1957 petition campaign expense totaling $7,274.38 I personally contributed $3,066.07—making an audited total for me in the two campaigns of $9,091.03.

I have paid for this state-wide telecast personally, another $1,848.75—and for all this you owe me nothing.

Except this:

Go to the polls next Tuesday and vote against Act 19.

Don't pay any attention to the other side's propaganda.

Vote your interests—just as you know they are voting theirs.

If my words and my example have found favor with you I extend this invitation to join me in organizing an Arkansas League of Voters. It would represent and protect the common people who have no expensive lobby to defend them when the legislature is looking for a tax goat.

Write to me in care of Hope Star at Hope. Any donations you send will be set up in a bank account for the future work of the League of Voters, and we can proceed with the organization at a later date.

Two state-wide petition campaigns have taught me the need for such an organization—to hold over the lobby-ridden legislature the constant threat of a petition to refer unjust tax measures to a popular vote.

Only yesterday—although 23 years ago—we were saying property was broke and couldn't carry the entire load of taxation.

Today we need an organization that will stand up and remind the state that direct taxes on the people like the sales tax can't carry the entire load—to remind the state that property now is at the highest market in history and should pay its fair share.

That's a representation job the League of Voters could do.

Another job the League of Voters might do is to revise Amendment 19, which protects the taxpayer from increases in taxes in effect up to 1934, but does not give that protection on the sales tax because it came along a year later. It should be no easier to raise taxes on the poor than on the rich.

Write to me at Hope if you want to help organize an Arkansas League of Voters. It might be the means some day of helping the public schools solve their revenue problem permanently. Perhaps we could initiate a constitutional amendment locking up state school funds at Little Rock so the legislature couldn't divert and squander them.

That would be a great day for Arkansas. If you're interested in the text of this speech, I have had it printed. Send a 4c postage stamp to me at Hope and I'll mail you a copy.

Thank you for your long attention. God bless you—and Good Night.

Cites Unreasonable Union Restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP)—Court-appointed monitors of the Teamsters Union complained to U.S. District Judge F. Dickinson Letts today that union bosses have adopted unreasonable eligibility restrictions for union office.

The monitors asked Judge Letts to strengthen their hand in dealing with union President James R. Hoffa and other international officers. The monitors were appointed under an order from Letts.

In papers filed with the court, the monitors said the international officers have interpreted the union's 1957 constitution in a way that makes the vast majority of the members ineligible to run for office.

The monitors asked Judge Letts to tell them whether they may require international officers to recommend to local unions "all reasonable provisions, including election rules," which they propose, and to require local unions to adopt such provisions.

CHANGING STYLES—The stone and metal sales presented at the annual sale of the University of Manipal in 1957 have been taken down because they are too narrow for modern vehicles. Dr. H. H. Sanderson, university president, said only one car could pass through at a time.

$2,000 Taken from Dierks Co. Office

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Burglars stole approximately $2,000 cash from the office of Dierks Forests, Inc., at nearby Mountain Pine early today.

They also took 13 shotguns and a rifle and eight watches from the company store and a small amount of narcotics from the drug section.

The money was taken from a safe which was forced open. Sheriff Leonard Ellis said the burglars apparently hid themselves in the store before closing time last night. There was no indication of forcible entry.

In Hot Springs, thieves broke into a Fountain Liquor store through a side window and took 30 cases of half-pints and 60 cases of beer valued at a total of about $1,800. Apparently they used a truck to haul away the loot.

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Two Negro children died early today in a fire that destroyed their home here.

Police identified the victims as David Dillard, 2, and Emma Rose Dillard, 8 months, children of Dorcas Dillard.

Golden Girl Will Wiggle Again

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—The program notes are different, but Purdue University's "Golden Girl" will be back with her same Hawaiian wiggles between halves of the Illinois-Purdue football game Saturday.

"Golden Girl" Adelaide Jeanne Darlings twirly dancing stirred up a protest from two Purdue opponents who wrote a letter to the campus newspaper this week.

At Wright, Purdue band leader, said the drill formations for the halftime show of the homecoming game had been changed for sake of variety before the coed protest appeared.

But Miss Darling, from Manteca, California will do exactly the same dance that she did at Purdue's game at Notre Dame last Saturday—the performance which touched off the coed ire.

It isn't exactly a hula, Wright said, but a kind of jungle dance, done to a Hawaiian war chant.

It's all part on a show called "Hail Purdue Around the World."

LIBERTY RISING—What at first glance looks like the Statue of Liberty in unfamiliar surroundings is actually a one-fifth-size replica of America's famous lady. The 31-foot, 20,000-pound bronze statue is being hoisted to the top of the Liberty National Life Insurance Building in Birmingham, Ala., where its gas-fired torch will shed light 161 feet above the city. Like her big sister in New York Harbor, Miss Liberty was made in France.

Heart Disease Strikes City Folks More

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Farmers appear to have much less risk of developing severe forms of coronary heart disease than nonfarmers as a group, a government report says.

A team of U.S. Public Health Service researchers said this was one of the preliminary findings of a survey on this disease conducted in six counties of northeastern North Dakota.

The team, headed by Dr. William Zukel of the National Heart Institute, told the 86th annual meeting of the American Public Health Assn. this story.

Among 20,000 males 35 and over in the area's population, including about 10,520 farmers and 8,510 men in other occupations, there were 228 reported cases of coronary heart disease during the year of the study.

Of the 228 cases, 101 occurred among farmers and 127 in males of other occupations.

The reported incidence of mild or manifestations of the disease—such as angina pectoris—was not much different for farmers when compared with nonfarmers.

However, the occurrence of the more severe manifestations—such as myocardial infarction ("heart attack") and death—was twice as high among the other occupational groups than it was among the farmers.

The reason the doctors offered no views. They merely said, "The reason for this difference deserves more intensive study."

Bobcats Smash Camden for District Crown

By CHARLES WYLLIE JR.

Coach John Pierce's Hope Bobcats defeated the Camden Panthers 34-14. The game was played in Hammond stadium before a near capacity crowd of 2000.

This was the game the Bobcats had to win because the 4-A district title was at stake.

The Bobcats won the toss of the coin and elected to receive.

Don Booth took the opening kickoff on his 20 and returned it to the 44. The Bobcats ran up against a scrappy Panther defense and were forced to punt after three downs.

John Graves booted the ball 45 yards and put the Panthers deep in their own territory. The Panthers quickly kicked to their own thirty where the ball was downed by a Bobcat.

Four plays later fullback Don Boothe plunged over from the 6. Boothe P. A. T. was good.

Graves kicked off but Camden was forced to punt after three downs. Dave Watkins returned the punted ball to his own 45. The next play from scrimmage Graves reeled off a 30 yard run. The next play the Bobcats were hindered by a 15 yard penalty.

After three plays Graves punted for the 20. The next play Don Boothe fumbled around with the ball and Bill Hall ran in and recovered the fumbled ball. The next play Don Boothe plunged over from the 6. Boothes P.A.T. was good.

For the first part of the second quarter both teams were held to a standstill, but with four minutes left in the first half Don Boothe scampered 21 yards for a T. D. Watkins P.A.T. was good. The first half ended with the Bobcats leading 20-0.

Both bands gave a fine half-time performance with the Bobcat Gumbo Band playing a cute stunt.

Jerry Thurman kicked off and Jerry Thurman recovered a fumble on the Panthers 40. The next play the Bobcats fumbled and Camden recovered. After three downs Camden was forced to punt. But after three plays Graves punted for the 20. The Bobcats were hindered by a 15 yard penalty.

But the next play from scrimmage John Graves reeled off 72 yards and a T. D. Watson's P.A.T. was good.

Jerry Thurman kicked off but the Panthers ran up against a powerful Bobcat defense and were forced to punt. Then the Bobcats fumbled deep in their own territory. Three plays later Jay Wilson ran over from the one for the Panthers first.

T. D. Terry Bowles P.A.T. was good.

For the rest of the third quarter the two teams battled to a complete standstill.

The second play of the fourth quarter Roy Rowe recovered a fumble on the 50. Five plays later Boothe raced 22 yards to the Panther 2. Three plays later John Graves jumped two yards for the T. D. Walker's P.A.T. was good.

In the last seconds of the game Jimmy Lewis threw a pass to Bullock who raced 45 yards for a T. D. Bowie's P.A.T. was good.

Coach John Pierce commented that his team played his part well and put out tremendous team effort.

Next week the Bobcats travel to Conway.

Goat Runs Down Airport Runway

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An unidentified object streaked down a runway at Lambert-St. Louis Airport today.

A traffic man in the control tower took a closer look with field glasses. It was a goat.

The goat ran and putmanovered the police for 30 minutes before they cornered it against a fence. But the fight wasn't over.

The officers got into their car speaker and dispensed a card with and Patrolman Frank LoPiccolo the figure printed on it.

Witnesses Called in Pine Bluff Rape Case

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—At least a dozen state witnesses were to be called today in the trial of Clarence Allen, a 35-year-old Negro charged with raping a white housewife.

The woman took the witness stand yesterday and pointed out Allen, a resident of the nearby Pastoria community, as her attacker. She was one of eight prosecuting witnesses called on opening day of the trial in Jefferson Circuit Court.

Allen is charged with assaulting the woman at her home in Wright Ave. 10 while her husband was at a National Guard encampment.

An all-white jury is hearing the trial.

Non-Agr Workers at Highest Level

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Non-agricultural employment hit its highest level of the year in Arkansas last month, the state Employment Security Division estimated yesterday.

The ESD said 340,000 persons had non-agricultural jobs in September, that figure was an increase of 18,000 over February when employment was at its lowest point.

The ESD said the increase in non-agricultural employment was the main factor in the gain.

Do you ever consider the meaning of a day?... Just a single day?... One day out of the 365-day year? With you, what does a day mean??? Actually, it means 1440 moments of opportunity. It means 24 hours of precious fleeting lifetime. It means that life at best is short... that it is only a little while we have to make the journey down through the valley of time. Just what are you doing with this day and every day? You sin when you uselessly spend the days God gave you. Each day on the calendar is like "a sheet of paper white whereon each one of us may write his word or two and then comes night... though thou have time but for a line, be that sublime; not failure but low aim is crime." Go to church this week and ask the Lord to help you keep your aim high. Ask Him to help you plan well every moment of every hour of every day. What does a day mean to you?

You In The Church
The Church In You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker and attend services regularly.
